TRAINING SCHEDULE

Apr 25-27 Glacier Travel and Crevasse Rescue

Planning that big trip up the mountain or just want to learn how to cross a glacier? Well, here is your chance! We will learn the rudiments of safe glacier travel (roped), how to stop a fall and how to rescue your fallen comrade. Be prepared for two enjoyable days on the glacier, practicing what you learn. Who knows when you might need to get yourself out of a 100' deep crevasse with a full pack and loaded sled?

Instructor: Steve Parry 248-8710

TRIP REPORTS

South Suicide Peak to Rainbow Peak Traverse

by Dave Hart

unday, March 16, 2002 saw Anchorage's largest 24-hour snowfall in history. Officially, twenty-six inches covered our fair city, though less hit the Chugach Range to the east. Still, a scouting hike three days later for my planned MCA ascent of Cumulus Peak the following weekend found unconsolidated waist-deep snow on the final 2,000 feet of the summit ridge. We would have to defer Cumulus for a later MCA trip and find another peak closer to Turnagain Arm, which was essentially missed by the storm. Our choice became a traverse between South Suicide Peak and Rainbow Peak.

One week later on Sunday, March 23, 2002 eight MCA members met at the Potter Section House at 7:00 a.m. We were: Bryan Carey, Tom Choate, Steve Gruhn, Karen Herzenberg, Carol Jewell, Joe Pulver, Laron Thomas and myself. We left the Falls Creek Trailhead at 7:45 a.m. carrying snowshoes on our backpacks. A trail was already set up to tree-line, above which hard-packed snow allowed us to keep our snowshoes on our packs all day. Several sheep followed our progress from the high ridges, and wolverine tracks dotted the snow pack throughout the valley.

By 12:30 p.m. all eight of us were on top of South Suicide Peak, taking in the view from Denali and Foraker to Spurr to Redoubt and Iliamna to Carpathian and finally Marcus Baker. We enjoyed a full 360-degree panorama as far as we could see. Carol and Bryan headed down from South Suicide, leaving the six of us at 1 p.m. to continue on towards Rainbow Peak, about 3 miles away.

The ridge was new terrain for most of us, with only Steve and Tom having been on portions of this ridge before. We followed sheep trails most of the way, occasionally traversing below some rocky gendarmes on the south side. Sunshine was abundant as was the wind, though Laron managed to hike for a surprising part of the day in his t-shirt, while Steve wore his winter shell. Four hours later we topped out on Rainbow Peak. It was 5 p.m. and we were all a bit tired after the 6,800 feet of climbing that Joe's watch had measured.

A Paddle Climb to Mt. Curtis Again

by Stuart Grenier

fter coming so close to summiting Mt. Curtis in May of 2000 I had to give it another try with the kayaks. Using the photos Tom Miller and I took of our trip (see Scree 09/2000) I got five people to sign on to a ten day trip from Whittier by sea kayak to Barry Arm and Mt. Curtis 4052 ft. The boats were on the cars and everything was ready to go but I was coughing my head off. The morning of our planned departure I came down with the flu. One day became four days and the trip dissolved. When I was well enough to go only Sean Bolander and Paul Koleman were still up for it. We decided to bag the climb part of the trip and just go for a paddle. It was four days of May in Prince William Sound, two clear and two wet. We made it as far as Bettles Bay and spent most of the time fishing. Mt. Curtis peaked through the clouds and an orca and some sea lions showed up. It was a good trip but I still needed to climb that peak.

The ball got rolling again when Tom Miller suggested we give it a try in August. Tom Choate got wind of it so the two Toms and I paddled out of Whittier on August 23, with ten days of food and climbing gear. On our second day we stopped on a beach near Pigot Point. After we split up to explore the area I heard Choate calling me over to some alder bushes where he had found a baby Porcupine. The porky was about half again as big as a soccer ball and Choate was taking an interest in it. He was getting very close to it with his hands and so I suggested he leave it alone. When I determined he was playing with fire I decided I couldn't watch anymore and started to walk away when I heard him shout. I turned around to see Choate holding his hand with seven quills sticking out of it. It was at this time that Dr. Choate showed us how to remove quills. You first cut the ends off to break the suction and then pull them out one at a time. It didn't seem to hurt him at all.

About ten minutes later I was sitting at the boats watching waves when to my surprise Choate came walking up to me with the porky hanging like a teddy bear from his hand. He explained that the porkies are not strong enough to do a one-arm pull up so this is how you carry them. Miller and I took a lot of pictures. Choate also showed us how to pick them up. His method is to take two short sticks and to get the porky to twirl around. Then he gets a stick under the prickly beast and flips it like a pancake. At this time a quick hand can grab its arm and pick it up. The porky didn't seem to mind it and when he let her go she seemed fine.

After battling what Miller called beaucoup white caps and a stiff northerly in our faces we camped near Pirate Cove. We awoke to find calm water and clear skies. We used this weather to reach Barry Arm and the base of Mt. Curtis. The feeling of paddling to a mountain you intend to climb is one of the best. When you combine the force that a mountain can exert on a person to climb it with the ever changing nature of the sea, you are likely to experience a resounding epiphany. The way the paddle slices into the sea, the sleekness of the kayak, the sunlight on the water, the angle of the summit slowly rising above your head, few things in life are as clear and divine as this. We used the same camp we had used 16 months earlier. And as we left camp the next morning the weather started to go just as bad as our last attempt.

Fortunately this time we were not dealing with a massive white cornice covered ridge in May but a green and gray ridge of August. The blowing rain and clouds could not totally blind us. Miller and I were all grins when we passed where we turned around the year before. Choate lead the way across a couple of hundred yards of snow on the south face when the ridge turned into a knife edge and then we were on the summit ridge which proved to be an easy scramble. The summit had a nice pointy rock on it that we buttressed with other rocks to make a cairn. We snapped a few pictures but the many glaciers of Harriman Fiord were clouded out. We left a register.

On the way down Miller saw something white. Could it have been the elusive polar bear of Prince William Sound that a tourist had photographed in Barry Arm? The picture appeared in both the Daily News and Alaska Mag.

It got away before we could get a good look at it but just the thought a near sighting of the Prince William Sound Polar Bear, known to some as Moby Claw was most intriguing. After one very wet summit it was clear that this group was not going to attempt another summit without reasonable weather. Of the nine days we were out we had only three half days without rain. Things got wet and stayed wet. Other than the near polar bear sighting and the summit, there were three events that I'll always remember from this trip. One was when a five-foot wave broke on the beam of the double when Choate was at the rudder.

Choate's paddle moved in a blur as he tried to keep from capsizing. It was something to see. The other two events were two animal sightings. Miller and I pulled the double right up behind a black bear as it was strolling down the beach. He would stop and turn to look at us but we would freeze. After staring at us for a few

American Alpine Club

Founded in 1902, The American Alpine Club is dedicated to promoting climbing knowledge, conserving mountain environments, and serving the American climbing community.

As climbing access becomes increasingly restrictive, the AAC vigorously represents climbers' interests through its work with federal, state, and private land managers. The AAC promotes the development of fair, effective climbing management policies which rely on education and minimal intervention. The Club currently has over 6300 members in sections across the country, including over 120 members in the Alaska Section.

Club is a nonprofit organization dedicated to conserving mountain environments, and representing climbers' interests through its work with federal, state, and private land managers. The Club currently has over 6300 members in sections across the country, including over 120 members in the Alaska Section.

Membership Benefits

As well as supporting the AAC advocacy, policy, and conservation work, the benefits of membership include:

- World-wide rescue insurance coverage for rescues and evacuations resulting from hiking, climbing, or backcountry skiing activities on peaks up to 6000 meters and the ability to purchase supplemental insurance for peaks higher than 6000 meters.
- Discounts with AAC Hut Association Members, and access to hut stamps for the European hut system.
- Free annual copies of The American Alpine Journal and Accidents in North American Mountaineering.
- A subscription to American Alpine News, the Club's award-winning quarterly newsletter.
- A monthly electronic newsletter.
- A coupon book that provides you with discounts on trips, gear, publications, and other climbing resources.
- 20% off all books and calendars published by the AAC Press and The Mountaineers Books.
- Use of the AAC Library, including remote lending privileges and discounted research requests.
- Discounted introductory subscriptions to Climbing and Rock & Ice magazines.
- 10% off all AAC logo merchandise.
- Expedition support by providing information, advice, and endorsements, as well as financial assistance through loans and expedition sponsorship.
- Grants are awarded annually to expeditions to attempt new challenges, conduct scientific research, and push the envelope of human knowledge and accomplishment in mountain and polar environments.
- Conservation grants program provides funds to environmental responsible projects and expeditions.
- The Club maintains the Grand Teton Climbers' Ranch in Grand Teton National Park.

Local Membership Benefits for Alaskans:

- AAC established the Denali Committee in April 2001 to oversee climbers' interests in the park.
- AAC involved in the Denali Backcountry Management Plan and Rescue Fee Recovery Study in 2001.
- AAC helped to get the 60-day registration period for Denali and Foraker climbs reduced to seven days for climbers meeting certain requirements.
- Discounts on charter flights with Alaska air taxis, and merchandise at participating retailers.
- AAC is getting more involved with local groups such as the Mountaineering Club of Alaska.
- Semi-annual meetings, sponsored slide shows, dinners, climbing rodeos and other social events.

In April of 2001, we hosted the Spring board meeting of the AAC. At this time, the Alaska Section was challenged to become more active and provide greater benefits to its local members. In that effort, we are currently organizing a number of events for 2002. Membership is $75 annually, discounted to $35 for members under 25, and $50 for members over 65 years of age. Joint memberships are available for $100. If you are interested in the Club, either contact us through the AAC website at www.americanalpineclub.org, or locally through Danny Kost, Alaska Section Chair, email: dkost@alaska.net, or telephone: (907) 562-2297.

MOUNTAINEERING CLUB OF ALASKA

MEMBERSHIP APPLICATION

The Mountaineering Club of Alaska (MCA) was formed in 1958 to promote the enjoyment of hiking and climbing in Alaska and the exploration of its mountains. We welcome all who wish to become members.

Participate and Learn: The MCA conducts scheduled hikes and climbs led by experienced club members, technical mountaineering and climbing courses, and other instruction throughout the year. The club maintains eight mountain huts in the nearby Chugach and Talkeetna mountains. The MCA's Vin Hoeman Library, located upstairs in Alaska Mountaineering & Hiking at 2633 Spenard Road, contains hundreds of books, numerous periodicals, bound volumes of the SCREE, and a 'Peak File' with information on local climbs. The club also loans climbing gear to members, including ice axes, helmets, crampons, snowshoes, and avalanche beacons.

Stay Informed: The MCA publishes a monthly newsletter, SCREE, and sends it to all members. The SCREE contains the minutes of the previous meeting, announcements of upcoming events, the hiking and climbing trip schedule, and trip reports written by club members. A monthly meeting and slide show are held on the third Wednesday of each month at 7:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church at 725 West Ninth Avenue (corner of 9th & G Streets, downtown Anchorage). Special events or changes to the meeting will be noted in the SCREE. Be sure to visit our website at: www.mcak.org

- ◆ Complete both sides of this form. To participate in club-sponsored trips, every member must read and complete the Release of Liability Agreement on the back of this application.
 - ◆ Please make checks payable to Mountaineering Club of Alaska, Inc.
 - ◆ Dues are $10 for an individual or $15 for a family (one SCREE per family).
 - ◆ Membership is for one calendar year, through the 31st of December.
 - ◆ Memberships paid after October 1st are good through December 31 of the following year.
 - ◆ If applying by mail, please include a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your membership card. Otherwise, you may pick it up at the next monthly meeting.

RELEASE OF LIABILITY—READ CAREFULLY

I, _____ (print name), am aware that mountaineering sports (including hiking; backpacking; rock, snow, and ice climbing; mountaineering; skiing; and ski mountaineering) are hazardous activities. I wish to participate and/or receive instruction in these activities with the Mountaineering Club of Alaska, Inc. (“MCA”) I recognize that these activities involve numerous risks, which include, by way of example only, falling while hiking, climbing, skiing or crossing rivers or glaciers; failure of a belay; being struck by climbing equipment or falling rock, ice or snow; avalanches; lightning; fire; hypothermia; frostbite; defective or malfunctioning equipment; and attack by insects or animals. I further recognize that the remoteness of the activities may preclude prompt medical care. I further recognize that risk of injury or death may be caused or enhanced by mistakes or negligence on the part of either my fellow participants or MCA officers, directors, guides, instructors, or trip leaders. I nevertheless agree to accept all risks of injury, death, or property damage that may occur in connection with any MCA activity, including use of MCA furnished equipment and MCA backcountry huts.

_____ (initial that you have read this paragraph)

GIVING UP MY LEGAL RIGHTS

By signing this Agreement, I agree to give up for myself and for my heirs all legal rights I may have against the MCA and my fellow participants in MCA activities (except to the extent that insurance coverage for any claim is provided by an automobile insurance policy or related excess insurance policies). I give up these legal rights regardless of whether the injury, death, or property damage results from mistakes or negligence on the part of either my fellow participants or the MCA. (As used in this agreement, MCA means the Mountaineering Club of Alaska, Inc., and all of its officers, directors, guides, instructors and trip leaders.) I understand this agreement shall remain in effect until such time as I provide signed written notice of its revocation to the MCA.

_____ (initial that you have read this paragraph)

MY PROMISE NOT TO SUE

I agree that I will not sue, or otherwise make any claim against, the MCA or my fellow participants in MCA activities for injury, death, or property damage which occurs in the course of my participation or instruction in mountaineering sports. Any lawsuit relating to MCA activities or this release shall only be filed in the Superior Court for the State of Alaska, Third Judicial District., Anchorage, Alaska. The provisions of this release are severable and if any part of this release is found unenforceable, the remaining provisions shall remain in full force and effect.

_____ (initial that you have read this paragraph)

MY RELEASE OF LIABILITY

I also agree to release and discharge the MCA and my fellow participants in MCA activities from all actions, claims, or demands, both for myself and for my heirs, dependents, and/or personal representative, for injury, death, or property damage occurring in the course of my participation or instruction in mountaineering sports.

_____ (initial that you have read this paragraph)

MY PROMISE TO INDEMNIFY

I agree to pay all expenses, including attorney’s fees and court costs, that the MCA or my fellow participants in MCA activities may incur as a consequence of any legal action arising out of injury, death, or property damage suffered by me.

MY CONSENT TO MEDICAL TREATMENT

I consent to any hospital care or medical or surgical diagnosis or treatment which may be necessary as a result of my participation in activities with the MCA. I also understand and agree that I am solely responsible for all applicable charges for such medical treatment, including evacuation and/or rescue cost.

_____ (initial that you have read this paragraph)

I HAVE CAREFULLY READ THIS AGREEMENT AND FULLY UNDERSTAND ITS CONTENT. I AM AWARE THAT THIS IS A BINDING, LEGAL AGREEMENT BETWEEN ME AND THE MCA.

Scree Editor

The editorship of Scree has passed to a new volunteer, this is my last issue. I started doing Scree in August 1983, first as typist, later as editor. The Scree went from the typewriter to the keyboard to the internet during that time. I think I missed two issues out of 224 (because of the best of all reasons, I was climbing). Please be kind to your new editor, Robert Baker, giving him the time he needs to get issues out. As editor I found, like any volunteer effort, the person who gives gets more than the people who receive, a fact that you can only appreciate if you try it. I'm glad Robert is trying it.

Respectfully submitted,
Willy Hersman
